

Aspects of Love 1

If I don't have other people I lose the basis on which I can develop my ability to love

If a person loves only himself, he is a very lonely person on this earth

With hate worlds are torn down, with Love they are built up

Love makes many things easier than the intellect considers them to be

By attaining unity of one's mind and body and establishing the absolute value of True Love in relating with others we establish profound peace within ourselves

Once a person becomes totally immersed in perfected Love, he will be able to enjoy total freedom

Everything, that such a person does, will automatically be a manifestation of Love
The more we love someone or something the more beautiful this person or thing appears to us

Our primary focus needs to be on the expansion of our ability to love on deeper levels

May we all learn to freely relate to each other with a loving Heart in this world that has become a global village

The suffering of humankind can only be brought to an end through the perfection of Love

When we look upon a person who hates us with Love, he will eventually change as we send out messages of Love to all those around us

When we learn to love all kinds of people, we will build a brotherhood and sisterhood that encompass all humankind

May we establish a Heart-centred tradition in this world by loving people as our brother or sister, parent or child

Nothing is more important and precious in life than living in a realm where heartfelt Love is shared freely with one another

In this way we secure the best possible future for our children and descendants

When True Love dwells in every home, then parents and children will live together harmoniously and all people will naturally form a worldwide family

The faces of those who live in the ideal society will naturally be beautiful because they live in a realm where deep Love is being shared

Truly loving relationships do not change along the way

Freedom without Love is not true freedom

Loving each other in a selfless way is certainly the key to ever growing and never ending happiness
